Work and Lessons from the International Defense and Security Program

TraCCC is pleased to welcome representatives from Transparency International's London office, for a talk at the School of Policy, Government, and International Affairs. Transparency International's International Defense and Security Program works with numerous Defense and Security Ministries around the world, with defense companies, with National Security Organizations, and with civil society seeking to limit corruption in their country.

The presenters will speak about the team's work, and how corruption is connected to terrorism and organized crime. They will also discuss subversion of defense assistance through corruption, using Ukraine as a current case study, where the TI Defense and Security Program is currently very active.

Join TraCCC for a lively discussion with our distinguished speakers.
